The Kitchen presents Derrick Adams' Go Stand Next To The Mountain and Narcissister's This Masquerade

Double bill will be performed Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15

New York, NY, April 30, 2010—On Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15, The Kitchen presents a double bill in which Derrick Adams and Narcissister will premiere new works. Adams' Go Stand Next To The Mountain is a suite of live performances exploring the complex relationships between man and monuments. Known for wildly original performance vignettes dealing with race, gender and sexuality, Narcissister debuts her new piece, This Masquerade. Curated by Rashida Bumbray, performances will begin at 8:00 P.M. at The Kitchen (512 West 19th Street). Tickets are $10.

Visual and performance artist Derrick Adams' Go Stand Next To The Mountain will evolve through masquerade, dance, sound, video projection and sculptural installation. The piece incorporates divergent pop culture references, ranging from 1970s educational television to the original version of the film Clash of the Titans to Jimi Hendrix's Voodoo Child lyrics. Go Stand Next To The Mountain features an original music score and a live DJ set as the soundtrack.

Narcissister creates absurd and playful vignettes of neo-burlesque, utilizing an array of masks, props, choreography and costumes. For This Masquerade, she debuts a new series of performances alongside her cast of masked cohorts to offer up a complex and riotous critique of popular culture's spurious ideas about black femininity. The piece also features original music by Evan Collier.

About the Artists

Derrick Adams is a Brooklyn-based artist, and is currently represented by Collette Blanchard Gallery, New York. A preoccupation with consumer objects and their presumed demographic posturing, particularly in an urban context, informs his practice of reconfiguring familiar items to expose their persuasive and often duplicitous nature. Derived from "impressionable experiences associated with iconography from American culture," particularly education, television, adults, and the mall, learning functions as both subject and object in Adam's works. He fashions a small society within an animated world by scripting performative identities through costumes and environments that are frequently reversed (interior/exterior, front/back), manifesting the two-sided nature of seemingly neutral objects.

His past solo exhibitions include i'm sorry, i'm lost, Marvelli Gallery, NY (2005); i'm smoke you're mirror, Participant Inc, NY (2005); me & my imaginary friends, Triple Candie, NY (2004); and the big getaway, Jack Tilton Gallery, NY (2003). Adams' work has been featured in group exhibitions including Greater New York, PS1/Moma; Wall Streets Rising, Deutsche Bank, NY; Sampson Projects, Boston, MA; Brooklyn Museum of Art, Brooklyn, NY; Contemporary Art Centre, Vilnius, Lithuania; Roebing Hall, NY; Massimo Audiello, NY; The Studio Museum in Harlem, NY; Centenary Gallery, Camberwell College of Arts, London, UK; L.C. Bates Museum, Hinckley, ME; & UFA Gallery, NY. Adams received his MFA from Columbia University in 2003 and a BFA from Pratt Institute in 1996. His awards include The Space Program, Marie Walsh Sharpe Art Foundation, NY (2003-2004); and Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture.

In addition, Adams has lectured and taught at various institutions, and served on numerous panels. He was the Founding Director of Rush Arts Gallery in New York, a core program of the Rush Philanthropic Arts Foundation, a non-profit organization started by brothers Russell, Danny and Joseph "Rev. Run" Simmons dedicated to providing urban youth with significant exposure and access to the arts, as well as providing exhibition opportunities

Narcissister is also a Brooklyn-based artist and performer. Before she called herself Narcissister, she was a professional modern dancer. Her formative training took place at the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center. Among her professional highlights was being selected to perform with the Alvin Ailey Company in Memoria, one of Ailey's seminal pieces, touring Europe as a dancer in a German rock-opera and performing in industrial work for Mercedes Benz.

In addition to her performance work, Narcissister has worked in many other creative media including contemporary quilting, collage, sculpture, printmaking and photography. She has participated in studio residencies including The Whitney Museum Independent Study Program and the Art in General Eastern European Residency Program. In addition, her work has been included in group shows and media publications. Narcissister has also worked extensively as a commercial artist, designing window displays and working as a stylist and art director.

The Narcissister performance project integrates her prior experience as a professional dancer with her current visual and commercial art practices. Narcissister has been receiving much recognition as an outstanding artist and performer through the written word, invitations, and awards. Her art film "The Self-Gratifier" won an award for "Best Use of a Sex Toy" at The 2008 Good Vibrations Erotic Film Festival. In April 2009 she was awarded a Backstage Magazine "Bistro Award" for Outstanding Vaudeville/Burlesque Performance, a category created especially to honor Narcissister's performance work.

In addition being a featured performer at The Box NYC, Narcissister has presented work at Deitch Projects, Joe's Pub, Glasslands Gallery, in the Weimar New York and Tingle Tangle shows, and has starred in and curated performance shows at Santos Party House and The Zipper Factory. In Spring 2009, Narcissister co-starred in "All Made Up: Fauxnique/Monique Jenkinson and Narcissister," a performance art show at The New Museum in New York. Narcissister is also developing an international following. In Spring 2009 she was invited to present her first evening length solo show as part of the Music Biennale in Zagreb, Croatia. In the Fall 2009 she presented work at Chicks on Speed's Girl Monster Festival in Hamburg, Germany, and at "The Festival of Women" in Ljubljana, Slovenia. She also presented work at Warehouse 09, Copenhagen's first live art festival live art festival, and at "Bordel Des Arts," a performance series at Lucas Carrieri gallery in Berlin.

Narcissister is currently a re-performer of Marina Abramovic's Luminosity piece as part of the groundbreaking retrospective "The Artist is Present" at MoMA.
